Congratulations! You are entitled to participate in the nomination of the presidential electors for your political party.

Wisconsin law requires the nominees for legislative offices of political parties for the November general election, as well as the holdover state senators and elected state officers, to convene at the state capitol to nominate the presidential electors for their party for the 2012 presidential election. Wis. Stat. § 8.18. This convention will be held on Tuesday, October 2, 2012, in the state capitol, beginning at 10:00 a.m. The locations of the conventions for each of the political parties are listed below:

Republican Party of Wisconsin	Room 415NW
Democratic Party of Wisconsin	Room 400NE

The convention is conducted by the state political parties. The elected state officers, holdover state senators and partisan legislative nominees are the participants in this convention. The chairperson of the state committee of each party is required to immediately certify the names of the nominees selected at the convention to the chairperson of the Government Accountability Board. On behalf of the Government Accountability Board and your political party, you are invited to attend this convention and participate in the nomination of the presidential electors for your political party.

This is the only notice of this convention you will receive. If you have any questions, please contact the Government Accountability Board staff or the director of your political party.
