

Wisconsin Driver License/State ID Card Without Photo

Accepted Voter Identification

Who is included?

Wisconsin residents who have a sincere religious belief against being photographed who apply for a Driver License or State ID Card

A Wisconsin resident who has sincerely held religious convictions that do not allow the resident to be photographed can apply for a waiver to the photo requirement.

Voter Photo ID Law

A Wisconsin Driver License or State ID card issued without a photo can be used as valid photo ID for voting purposes.

This license or card must be unexpired, or have an expiration date after the most recent general election; currently, November 4, 2014

What does it look like?

- You must provide the same documentation to the DMV as any other person requesting a Driver License or State ID card. This includes proof of identity, legal presence, name and date of birth, and residency.
- You must also file an affidavit which certifies that you object to being photographed due to a sincerely-held religious conviction. This affidavit is available at any DMV service center and should be requested from DMV staff.
- A State ID can be issued for free if it is going to be used for voting purposes. Just check the appropriate box on the application and your State ID will be issued at no cost.
- If you do not have all of the required documents for a State ID card, the DMV has a petition process available to help you obtain missing documentation.
